

Skip to comments.

'Million Dollar Baby' Is a Neo-Nazi Movie

NewsMax ^ | 2/12/05 | Dr. Ted Baehr

Posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:30:45 PM by wagglebee

The forerunner of "Million Dollar Baby" was the very entertaining Nazi movie "I Accuse," which won the top prize at the Venice Film Festival and was the propaganda that Dr. Goebbels used to convince the German people to switch their vote from "vehemently opposed to the holocaust" to over 60 percent in favor of so-called "mercy killing." In fact, "I Accuse" is a very subtle film that inspired the killing of millions of people.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels was the National Socialist (Nazi) propaganda minister from 1933 to 1945. He exploited radio, press, cinema and theater in Germany to destroy the Jews, evangelical Christians, handicapped Germans and other groups. In 1994, the Discovery Channel aired "Selling Murder," an important documentary investigating how Goebbels used mass media to influence the German people to accept the mass murder of human beings. The documentary shows that at a time when a majority of German people rejected mercy killings (a euphemism for murder), Goebbels produced the movie "I Accuse," an emotive feature film about a beautiful, intelligent woman who is dying of an incurable disease and begs to be allowed to commit suicide.

After the movie was released, a majority of German people said they had changed their minds and now supported mercy killings. After a few more of Goebbels' films about invalids and handicapped people, the German people became strong believers in the efficacy of mass mercy killings.

While the attempted annihilation of Jews by the National Socialists is well documented, the atrocities did not stop with the Jewish race. The main focus of "Selling Murder" is a group that has been somewhat overlooked: the mentally and physically ill of Germany. In 1939, Hitler ordered the killing of the mentally and physically disabled, labeling them as "life unworthy of life."

His reasoning was that the cost of keeping them alive in asylums and hospitals was too great. The real reason, however, stemmed from the government's determination to eliminate any threat to its idea of producing a superior race.

"Selling Murder" is must viewing for every moral person concerned about the use of the mass media of entertainment to influence societal behavior. Similarities between the National Socialist use of film and "Million Dollar Baby" are frightening.

In a January 27, 2005 article in the Los Angeles Times, Marcie Roth, executive director of the National Spinal Cord Injury Association, a national advocacy group with 13,000 members, was quoted as saying that "this narrative development spreads a socially irresponsible message. The movie is saying 'death is better than disability.'"

The Los Angeles Times continues: "The group contends that the movie is part of a larger bias Eastwood holds against the disabled. A press release on its website carries the headline, 'Eastwood Continues Disability Vendetta with "Million Dollar Baby."' Labeling the movie a 'brilliantly executed attack,' it also details a 1997 lawsuit in which a disabled woman sued the actor-director, saying he did not provide handicapped-accessible restroom facilities at the Carmel, Calif., resort he owned."

The press release goes on to divulge the movie's plot. "Our responsibility is to the half-million people with spinal cord injuries, not to moviegoers or moviemakers," Roth said.

Rush Limbaugh blasted "Million Dollar Baby" as a "million dollar euthanasia movie." Critic Michael Medved told USA Today that he had revealed the plot twist because "there are competing moral demands that come into the job of a movie critic. We have a moral and fairness obligation to not spoil movies. On the other hand, our primary moral obligation is to tell the truth."

Medved, who says he "hated this movie," also remarked, "They didn't want to tell people what it is [about] because no one would come." Jewish columnist Don Feder says that "the screenplay could have been smuggled out of Dr. Jack Kevorkian's prison cell."

Furthermore, my wife has been on chemotherapy for ten years and is in great pain. California is now considering a so-called "doctor-assisted suicide" law. The connection is too horrible.

Love should never trump conscience. Murder is not excusable, even when it is art. And the renowned director of "Million Dollar Baby" is not conservative (contrary to the witless commentary in the Los Angeles Times), except in the sense that the National Socialists were branded as conservative. In truth, real Christian conservatives support life, not murder.

TOPICS: Crime/Corruption; Culture/Society; Editorial; Government; News/Current Events

KEYWORDS: clinteastwood; deadcandance; disabilities; eugenics; euthanasia; fascism; goebbels; hollywierd; holocaust; milliondollarbaby; moviereview; nazis; sickmovie; stupidtitles; tedbaehr; utilitarianism

Navigation: use the links below to view more comments.

first 1-50, 51-82 next last

Love should never trump conscience. Murder is not excusable, even when it is art. And the renowned director of "Million Dollar Baby" is not conservative (contrary to the witless commentary in the Los Angeles Times), except in the sense that the National Socialists were branded as conservative. In truth, real Christian conservatives support life, not murder.

Perfect!

1 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:30:46 PM by wagglebee
[Post Reply | Private Reply | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

Idiots on parade.

2 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:34:27 PM by balrog666 (A myth by any other name is still inane.)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

Comment #3 Removed by Moderator

To: wagglebee

'Million Dollar Baby' Is a Neo-Nazi Movie

That's probably the most idiotic headline I've read in years.

4 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:36:18 PM by Kurt_D
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: Kurt_D

You would think people would have better things to do with thier life, and their time in it.

5 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:39:15 PM by EagleUSA
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 4 | View Replies]

To: Kurt_D

That's probably the most idiotic headline I've read in years.

You need to read more WingNutDaily headlines....

6 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:40:19 PM by Strategerist
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 4 | View Replies]

To: EagleUSA

In deed. Maybe we should lower our intellectual standards as well... Hitler used toilet paper, thus I am a Neo-Nazi because I also use toilet paper.

7 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:41:20 PM by Kurt_D
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 5 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

8 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:42:13 PM by new cruelty
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

I have not seen the movie.....but I have told my family if I ever tun into a drooling, brain dead plant....kinda lika a dim.....spare me and pull the plug.

9 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:47:02 PM by Blackirish

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

The Los Angeles Times continues: "The group contends that the movie is part of a larger bias Eastwood holds against the disabled. A press release on its website carries the headline, 'Eastwood Continues Disability Vendetta with "Million Dollar Baby."'

Okay. I know the LA Times is lying-leftie trash second only to the NY Times (the Seattle Times is IMHO trying really hard for the crown but failing) in its fundamentally dishonest reporting... but... I don't watch many movies and I have no idea what this is about. Is this a Clint Eastwood movie, and what is it (purportedly) saying?

10 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:49:04 PM by sionnsar († trad-anglican.faithweb.com † || Iran Azadi || US Foreign Service blog: diplomadic.blogspot.com)

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: Blackirish

If NewsMax keeps this up, they'll soon overtake WorldNetDaily as the "National Enquirer" of the right.

I've seen MDB and I thought it was a great flick. I don't understand the controversy.

12 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:54:37 PM by Trippin

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 9 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

This sounds like paranoia.

13 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:56:18 PM by EveningStar

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

This euthanasia pro death cult gang is getting as intolerant and anti-choice as the pro-abortion gang and worse, just one big death squad they are. When all is said and done again, they really do not want it to be about choice, just death, for all, whether you want it or not.

14 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:56:37 PM by Esther Ruth

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: Trippin

>>I don't understand the controversy.<<

ost something like:

"I believe I have the right to control my body and when I want to exit this earth" and see the flames come at you.

15 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:58:19 PM by WildTurkey (When will CBS Retract and Apologize?)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 12 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

In 1994, the Discovery Channel aired "Selling Murder," an important documentary investigating how Goebbels used mass media to influence the German people to accept the mass murder of human beings.

I watched that and remember thinking how much the MSM & culture leaders were parroting the Nazi line.

16 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 7:59:21 PM by Tribune7
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: Trippin

This is turning into "The Alamo" all over again (Perfectly good movie that seemed to be universally liked by the FReepers that saw it, that was the recipient of a virulent smear campaign by assorted sources on the Right, including some who never saw the movie.)

17 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:01:09 PM by Strategerist
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 12 | View Replies]

To: Blackirish

if I ever tun into a drooling, brain dead plant....kinda lika a dim....spare me and pull the plug.

Same here. I saw the movie and thought it was terrific.

18 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:04:26 PM by nycgal
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 9 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

Well, all of the conservative wailing about "Million Dollar Baby" probably guarantees that it will win "Best Picture."

19 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:04:30 PM by My2Cents ("Friends stab you from the front." -- Oscar Wilde)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

Rush and Medved deserve kudos for exposing this demented movie for what it is.

If Hollywierd wasn't ashamed of the content it wouldn't have saturated the airwaves with the deceptive ad campaign.

20 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:05:01 PM by BenLurkin (Liberals hate liberty.)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: Trippin

Wasn't there a comment at the end of the film about the decision (to kill the person) being "heroic"?

Do you agree? Do you think this is a heroic thing to do?

I would think placing one's life in jeopardy to save another is heroic.

But now killing the other person is heroic -- according to the Hollywood propaganda machine.

21 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:05:26 PM by robertpaulsen

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 12 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

Dr. Kurt Asperger achieved two great things in his life. He identified and named the phenomenon of "autism." and, by getting the concept of the autistic disorder SPECTRUM into the scientific literature, he was able to save the lives of many of his patients when the nazis came for the disabled.

22 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:10:21 PM by TomSmedley (Calvinist, optimist, home schooling dad, exuberant husband, technical writer)

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

The 'useless eater' propaganda machine is coming to a town near you, starting with St.Pete/Clearwater.

23 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:10:21 PM by Ohioan from Florida (The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.- Edmund Burke)

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

Actually, I just went to see the movie, and the ending made me cry. I don't see how the ending is anti-disabled or anything akin to what the article describes at all.

24 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:10:28 PM by Accygirl

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: robertpaulsen

The movie was based on a story written by a real-life boxing cutman, so it hardly emanates from the "Hollywood Propaganda Machine."

25 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:12:22 PM by Strategerist

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 21 | View Replies]

To: Accygirl

Let's review:

1) People who actually saw the movie: Don't have a problem

2) People who haven't seen it: Simply repeating rants in lockstep as mindless minions of Newscrap and WingNutDaily.

26 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:14:29 PM by Strategerist
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 24 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

All this talk has made me really want to see this movie now, while prior to this weekend I had zero interest.

27 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:15:25 PM by richmwill
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: My2Cents

How true. Though it may be difficult, the less said about some things the better.

28 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:20:38 PM by TAdams8591 (The call you make may be the one that saves Terri's life!!!!!!)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 19 | View Replies]

To: wagglebee

This article is whacky and gives us a bad name.

Medved has very specific issues with this movie but I doubt that he would consider it Nazi propaganda.

This is Michael Medved's capsule review:

In "Million Dollar Baby" Hillary Swank plays an ambitious boxer who wants to recruit a new trainer.

That crusty expert is of course Clint Eastwood who also directed this critically acclaimed film that focuses on a cluster of hard luck characters, including Morgan Freeman getting one last shot at the big time.

And Warner Brothers never tells you the truth about a key plot twist that turns this pedestrian boxing movie into an insufferable manipulative right to die movie. With one of the characters horribly handicapped begging for assisted suicide. While the movie kills itself with lots of hooky narration. Rated PG-13 but totally unsuitable for kids. 1 1/2 Stars for the shamelessly overrated, misleadingly marketed "Million Dollar Baby."

29 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:26:14 PM by EveningStar
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 1 | View Replies]

To: TAdams8591

Check on the key words. In the beginning, I was interested but this movie has been talked to death.

30 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:27:52 PM by EveningStar
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 28 | View Replies]

To: Blackirish

I have not seen the movie.....but I have told my family if I ever tun into a drooling, brain dead plant....kinda lika a dim....spare me and pull the plug.

Fair enough, I would too. But here's the key question: would you ask them to inject you with a lethal dose of drugs?

31 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:29:05 PM by mcg1969
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 9 | View Replies]

To: Trippin

The dark ages are coming back, mark my words.

32 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:31:18 PM by John Lenin
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 12 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist

Fine. Since you're so familiar with the story, then maybe you can tell me. Was the term "heroic" used in real life, or was that added by the "Hollywood Propaganda Machine"?

You do realize that the subject of euthanasia is very controversial, and can be portrayed two different ways? That Hollywood can take a real life event and portray the character as likable or evil?

I don't care where the story emanates. I care how it's portrayed.

33 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:32:38 PM by robertpaulsen
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 25 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist

Haven't seen this movie yet but My overall comment is that although I am quite conservative, I can watch and enjoy a good movie even if it works a theme I don't agree with. For example, I liked the China Syndrome, especially Jack Lemmon's performance, and even jane Fonda's. When she is crying for Jack Lemmon at the end, I cry too.

But I personally led a movement to take over and change my college PIRG group because I didn't like it's anti-nuclear power message. And I despise Jane Fonda and consider her to be a traitor to this country. But the movie was still well done. "JFK" would be another example of a compelling movie, although nutty.

I guess my bottom line is I am not afraid of being taken in by Nazi or neo Nazi propoganda. And I like good movies.

34 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:33:24 PM by Williams
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 26 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist

>>>>The movie was based on a story written by a real-life boxing cutman, so it hardly emanates from the "Hollywood Propaganda Machine."

The "real life boxing cutman" wasn't writing about female boxers. The whole concept of female boxing is only moderately less ridiculous than midget boxing. The movie pushes the feminist line: that's concession to Hollyweird No. 1.

Then the movie promotes euthanasia: that's concession to Hollyweird No. 2. You really don't think the movie would be nominated for best picture if the boxers had been male and if Eastwood had heeded the priest's advice and not committed euthanasia, do you?

35 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:35:06 PM by Thorin ("I won't be reconstructed, and I do not give a damn.")
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 25 | View Replies]

To: Williams

I haven't seen this movie but I seriously doubt that it's Nazi propaganda.

36 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:36:52 PM by EveningStar
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 34 | View Replies]

To: EveningStar

Yea right, the first anti-smoking laws were passed by the Nazis. History is repeating itself because people fail to understand it and it's not being taught in the schools anymore.

37 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:39:45 PM by John Lenin
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 36 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist; Accygirl

Let's review:

- 1) People who actually saw the movie: Don't have a problem
 - 2) People who haven't seen it: Simply repeating rants in lockstep as mindless minions of Newscrap and WingNutDaily.
-

Actually, my analytical group at work went to see this movie on Friday (Feb 11) as a "team building event". My 'instant assessment', as the credits rolled, was: "This is the most effective pro-euthanasia propaganda film that I've ever seen". When I said so in the theater lobby, most of the others looked at me as though I had five heads. The one who had suggested the event, however, saw my point immediately, and mentioned its similarity to a another propaganda flick from a few years ago: Cider House Rules.

I'm glad I ran across this item on FR. Next Monday, I will suggest that we line up a copy of that Discovery Channel report, "Selling Murder", and watch it together as a followup to this past Friday, which was quite a downer, I think.

38 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:41:31 PM by Blue_Ridge_Mtn_Geek
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 26 | View Replies]

To: mcg1969

About a third of the way through this article on Restoring the "Hidden Law" is an excellent part on euthanasia and how it should be handled.

I agree totally.

39 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:42:31 PM by robertpaulsen
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 31 | View Replies]

To: Thorin

How dare you criticise Hollywood!!!! Where else would we get guidance, wisdom, and discernment? Without "Platoon" we would never have learned about the venal way our troops behaved in Vietnam. Without "Dancing with Wolves" we would never have learned about the despicable US Clavary and the noble American Indian. Hollywood rules, man.

40 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:42:54 PM by Zechariah11
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 35 | View Replies]

To: Blue_Ridge_Mtn_Geek

Cider House Rules was my first thought. Some also mentioned the homosexuality message in Alexander.

41 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:49:04 PM by robertpaulsen
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 38 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist

"This is turning into "The Alamo" all over again (Perfectly good movie that seemed to be universally liked by the FReepers that saw it, that was the recipient of a virulent smear campaign by assorted sources on the Right, including some who never saw the movie.)"

I'm glad to hear someone else say this. Every review I read or saw of The Alamo panned it and I didn't go at the theaters because of it. I rented it when it came out on DVD and liked it a lot. In fact, I think it was probably the best of the movies to come out last summer. Good to hear I'm not alone.

42 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:49:23 PM by joe buck
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 17 | View Replies]

To: robertpaulsen

Ugh. Suit yourself.

43 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 8:49:41 PM by mcg1969
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 39 | View Replies]

To: Thorin

The "real life boxing cutman" wasn't writing about female boxers. The whole concept of female boxing is only moderately less ridiculous than midget boxing. The movie pushes the feminist line: that's concession to Hollyweird No. 1.

You should actually read the story before you decide what the writer was or was not writing about. It's in Rope Burns: Stories From The Corner by F.X. Toole.

44 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:01:28 PM by cryptical
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 35 | View Replies]

To: TAdams8591

Though it may be difficult, the less said about some things the better.

Precisely. We really need to pick our fights. I'm not sure fighting over this movie, especially calling it "neo-Nazi," is necessary.

45 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:07:58 PM by My2Cents ("Friends stab you from the front." -- Oscar Wilde)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 28 | View Replies]

To: cryptical; Thorin

The whole concept of female boxing is only moderately less ridiculous than midget boxing.

I have never seen midget boxing.. (wrestling, yes..)

But I have watched Layla Ali beat the holy "stuffins" out of some of the best female boxers available..
(And quite frankly, I enjoyed it.. just as much as watching male boxers..)

Male, female, midget, it's the competition, not the participants that count..

46 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:33:08 PM by Drammach (Freedom; not just a job, it's an adventure..)
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 44 | View Replies]

To: Strategerist

What is a boxing cutman? Is it like a ring doc?

47 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:38:58 PM by Yaelle
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 25 | View Replies]

To: Yaelle

No, he's a member of the corner team, not the ring doc per se; all he does is dress cuts. He's usually the guy right next to the trainer when the boxer goes into the corner.

48 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:41:38 PM by Strategerist
[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 47 | View Replies]

To: Blue_Ridge_Mtn_Geek

The saying that "Hypocrisy is the tribute vice pays to virtue" was brought to mind by the scamming going on about this flick. It's not a good thing that the flick was made. It's not a good thing that people are lying about what it's about. It is a good thing that there are still enough people, like Medvd and various FReepers, around to call what it's about by it's right name: euthanasia propaganda.

49 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:43:04 PM by 185JHP ("The thing thou purposest shall come to pass: And over all thy ways the light shall shine.")

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 38 | View Replies]

To: balrog666

Godwin's Law material, even before the first post.

50 posted on Saturday, February 12, 2005 9:47:25 PM by Doctor Stochastic (Vegetabilisch = chaotisch is der Charakter der Modernen. - Friedrich Schlegel)

[Post Reply | Private Reply | To 2 | View Replies]

Navigation: use the links below to view more comments.

first 1-50, 51-82 next last

Disclaimer: Opinions posted on Free Republic are those of the individual posters and do not necessarily represent the opinion of Free Republic or its management. All materials posted herein are protected by copyright law and the exemption for fair use of copyrighted works.

Free Republic
Browse · Search

News/Activism
Topics · Post Article

FreeRepublic, LLC, PO BOX 9771, FRESNO, CA 93794

FreeRepublic.com is powered by software copyright 2000-2008 John Robinson